Take the Guesswork out of the Bar Application

Character and Fitness Reporting

THE BAR EXAM.

Pressure. Anxiety. Stress. After passing the Bar Exam, the expectation is to go on to find a job as a licensed attorney, right? Not necessarily. Sometimes, the Board of Bar Examiners can delay a future lawyer's swearing-in by months or even years, based on his or her character and fitness evaluation. Before a person can be sworn-in as an attorney, he or she must first clear an extensive and often invasive moral character and fitness evaluation. To clear an applicant's moral character and fitness application, the Board of Bar Examiners conducts background investigations into the applicant's academic, criminal, and financial history. Any oversight by the applicant could delay clearing his or her file.

How Can Ethos Help?

It is Ethos's goal to provide its clients with a comprehensive background report and financial review, focused specifically on the character and fitness section of the Bar Application. Once we have completed the research, we will deliver the final report. The final Ethos report will include the following:

an executive summary highlighting all areas that may require corrective action, a detailed background report, and a model Bar Application with the character and fitness sections completed. Bottom line is Ethos will take the guesswork out of the Bar Application for you, helping you get through the process every step of the way.

Ethos Takes Action

Our specialized investigators collect and report part-time jobs, past violations, traffic incidents, and past liens. Ethos will uncover items that may be potential red flags before they become issues. Wouldn't you like to be in the driver's seat of your law career?

Ethos Background Investigation and Reporting Includes:

- Criminal History
- Names and Aliases
- Official Address Locations
- Education Verification
- Educational Disciplinary History
- Marital Status
